April 21, 1969
Monday
London, England

Dear Mr. Weisberg—

Finally got in touch with Mr. Pilger and he was very nice and said he had received my letter. He said the best thing for you to do is write to him at this address:

Mr. John Pilger
Features Dept.
The Daily Mirror
33 Holborn St.
London ECI

Okay? The perspective publisher I had gotten in touch with is now going out of business. He said not too many people are

(2) interested in the assassination over here. I guess judging from the number of books he's sold. I was sorry to hear about that because I was quite hopeful.

I hope all is going well with you and your writing. Your literary accomplishments are great. To me that is understood but I'm sure at times you have doubts about things. I hope that isn't one of them. This quote I love and think expresses alot "a damned good writer who has written a damned good book..."

Best wishes,
Cindy